

MISSION AND VALUES

CSNM members have the qualifications, education, and experience required to meet the growing demands of our field.

The role of a nutrition manager is complex, bridging the gap between administrative and food service personnel and coordinating operations in a variety of settings. Today's nutrition managers are challenged by the nutrition industry's emphasis on cost control, quality assurance, accreditation, and safe food handling.

OUR MEMBERS

- recognize and anticipate the growing needs in the field of nutrition management
- are equipped to meet increasing demands in cost control, accreditation and safe food handling
- continually add to their training to maintain their membership and expand their skill-sets
- have access to our hub of experts in nutrition management
- stay on top of the latest industry news and trends
- are trained in problem-solving and making quick, accurate decisions
- seize opportunities to share their time and knowledge in building up the CSNM community and nutrition industry

CSNM Membership Benefits

NETWORKING OPPORTUNITIES, CONTINUING EDUCATION, SUPPORTING A SOCIETY THAT IS MEMBERSHIP DRIVEN, PROMOTING AND SUPPORTING YOUR PROFESSION.

Membership Opportunities

... over 3,000 active members

ACTIVE MEMBERS

To be eligible for active membership an Individual must be a graduate from a two-year CSNM accredited college/program in Food Service and Nutrition Management. If a person graduates from a post-secondary program other than what's stated above, the program must contain essential elements in food and nutrition management and the applicant will be required to write a CSNM exam.

By belonging to the Society you will be exposed to networking and educational opportunities and be active in promoting your chosen field.

Active members are entitled to use the professional designation - NM.

STUDENT MEMBERS

Student members are eligible for reduced membership and conference rates. Being a student member allows you to apply for a CSNM national bursary and an opportunity to see what is happening in the profession from one end of the country to another.

CORPORATE MEMBERS

Being a corporate member of the CSNM will be a valuable asset to your company. Our Society is growing each year and is continually working to upgrade and maintain standards in the Food and Nutrition Management profession.

A corporate member has the opportunity to network with other members of the society; attend educational events; receive and advertise in our quarterly CSNM Magazine.
